Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Friday 05 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Rain then snow moving south over the weekend.

This Evening and Tonight:
Further rain and sleet across northern UK with heavy snow over the hills of central and northern Scotland, with drifting in the strong easterly winds. Further south, some showers, but also clear spells allowing frost and fog in the south-west.

Saturday:
Rain and hill snow moving south-westwards, with some drier and sunnier weather in the southwest for a time after fog and low cloud lifts. Snow developing in the south-east overnight.

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Following a spell of snow in the southeast on Sunday, further snow showers are expected next week, most frequent in the east. Dry and bright in the west. Very cold.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.